

Alan Baldwin

--

The Long Way Around: Oslo to New York via the Trans-Siberian
Railway in 1940 and 1941

A Recollection

Nebbadoon Press

$22.95

Available at www.BaldwinTrip.com
In tree-book and e-book editions

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact: George Spitzer, Nebbadoon Press
325 E. Figueroa St., Santa Barbara, CA 93101
800-500-9086 George@NebbadoonPress.com

Caught behind enemy lines, the gentleman and electrical cable engineer Alan Baldwin travels by ship, plane, and train through seven countries.

It is 1940, and Germany and Great Britain are at war. Author Alan Baldwin, a British citizen working in Norway for ITT, becomes an enemy alien trapped by the German occupation and wonders how, and if, he will ever get home. A sense of danger, offset by vivid details of his day-to-day life, permeates the story of his journey, first to neutral Sweden, then across Soviet Russia on the Trans-Siberian Railway. A dangerous sea voyage brings him to Japan, where a surreal interlude finds him skiing with a party of Germans. Another harrowing sea voyage brings him to Vancouver, Canada, where he is thrown into an internment prison. After his release, another train journey, across Canada, brings him to ITT headquarters in New York. He has traveled almost around the world in 534 days and still hasn't made it home to Britain.

The Long Way Around: Oslo to New York via the Trans-Siberian Railway in 1940 and 1941

is available at www.BaldwinTrip.com
as a tree-book and e-book.

#

For more information contact Nebbadoon Press